The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) maintains Programme Offices in all five Central Asian States, including in the Kyrgyz Republic. UNODC has extensive experience in providing technical assistance to the whole of Central Asia in the region's efforts to counter drug and human trafficking, to strengthen regional cooperation among law-enforcement and judicial authorities, to establish controls for precursor chemicals and to work with drug users in reducing narcotics demand while promoting HIV prevention and treatment. UNODC also assists in criminal justice reform, in legislative drafting processes, and in the analysis of drug trends. All this work is carried out in close cooperation with national and international partners and donors.
