Kyrgyzstan debates UNODC-supported new Government Programme against human trafficking

The Programme office on United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in Kyrgyzstan (UNODC POKYR) and the State Migration Service under the Government of the Kyrgyz Republic gathered some 50 Government officials, experts from crisis centres, victim support groups, other civil society and international organisations in Bishkek last week to discuss a draft new Government Programme and National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons for Kyrgyzstan for 2017-2020 years.

“No country is immune from trafficking in persons”, said Koen Marquering, UNODC International Coordinator at the roundtable discussion. “This is also true for Kyrgyzstan where migration flows are traditionally intense and vulnerability of migrants to various forms of exploitation high”, Marquering added.

As part of the process for the development of the new action plan, an interdepartmental working group assessed the level of implementation of the previous national action plan against trafficking in persons, which expired in 2016. The evaluation showed an overall implementation of the programme for 2013-2016 rate of over 70%, but also emphasized several gaps and challenges. According to Almazbek Asambayev, Deputy Chairman of the Kyrgyz State Migration Service, the previous Action Plan for 2013-2016 carried out a great work in changing legislation. “The Criminal Code has an article, which is aimed at preventing and punishing organization of human trafficking.”

Participants of the roundtable stressed the need for better coordination, monitoring and evaluation of such action plans, as well as proper funding, in particular for shelters. The analysis also gathered data on the prosecution of human trafficking in Kyrgyzstan. Between 2013 and 2016, 50 criminal cases were brought to court, which resulted in the conviction of 62 for labor or sexual exploitation.

“The new action plan foresees work on the further improvement of legislation, the establishment of a national referral mechanism, concerted action to prevent trafficking in persons and raise awareness on the risks of exploitation, as well as efforts to promote interagency and international cooperation, more effective investigation and prosecution of trafficking cases, and victim support”, said Aidakeeva Baktygul, leading specialist of the labor migration abroad at the Kyrgyz State Migration Service when presented the new Government Programme to roundtable participants.

Thanks to funding provided by the US State Department’s Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs (INL), the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime supports efforts to prevent and prosecute trafficking in persons and smuggling of migrants within the framework of its Programme for Central Asia 2015-2019.

Prevention of drug use and crime through strengthening relations between parents and teenagers

Families can be one of the most powerful protective factors for children and youth.

UNODC has implemented evidence-based family skills training programme Strengthening Families Programme for parents and youth of age 10-14 (SFP 10-14) in Uzbekistan. The programme involves elementary school children, 10 to 14 years of age, and their families in 7 family training sessions using family systems and cognitive behavioral approaches to increase resilience and reduce risk factors. It seeks to improve family relationships, parenting skills, and youth’s social and life skills.

In 2016, SFP 10-14 was successfully piloted in 5 schools of Tashkent city (№118, №158, №109, №7 and №213) during two implementation cycles. In total 80 families benefited from the programme. Each family was presented by one or two parents and one teenager aged 10-14. To assess results of the programme implementation the evaluation was conducted. Method of evaluation was "retrospective pre test" where participants were asked series of questions, both, "then" (pre-test) and "now" (post-test) during last session. Validity of the results was guaranteed by using data of controlled groups with enough sampling range and stable instrumentation. Questionnaires included 20 questions for parents and 15 questions for teenagers. In total 148 pre- and post-questionnaires from parents and their children were analysed. Also videotapes of families’ interviews and their feedback were used during qualitative assessment.

Evaluation results demonstrated that SFP 10-14 reached its main goals:
- Parents/caregivers obtained special knowledge, which help them to build positive relations with their children and set appropriate limits, as well as set rules and follow through with consequences each time he or she breaks a rules
- Parents/caregivers learned to control children's behaviour and teach to discipline through positive methods
- Youth obtained a healthy future orientation and an increased appreciation of their parents/caregivers
- Youth learned skills for dealing with stress and peer pressure.

Youth protective factors improved by:
