Describe your programme

The programme is located in a poor district. Outreach workers distribute clean needles, condoms, and safer injection information to three communities with a high rate of injection drug use and poor access to preventive care or medical treatment. We develop brochures and stickers containing prevention messages, workshops and counselling. During 2000, a seroprevalence study was conducted in several injection drug using communities around Buenos Aires. Testing for HIV, Hepatitis B and C, and HTLV1 and 2. Further, participants completed a pre-test interview in which they provided information about their sexual and drug use behaviours, their living conditions, and their access to medical services. The programme

Describe your programme

ICON is a volunteer street-based outreach programme that engages young Indo-Chinese drug users in their natural settings and on their own terms. Guided by a philosophy of harm reduction, ICON provides needle and syringe and condom distribution, education, safe disposal, first aid and referrals two afternoons and two evenings a week. Blood-borne virus screening and hepatitis B immunization have also been provided for the past 12 months as part of a research study. The client group is primarily Vietnamese, Lao and Kmer-background IDU, many of whom are street-based and have little contact with health services. Young people present with a range of health problems including vascular problems, abscesses, liver disease, sexually transmitted infections, pregnancy and TB, as well as those related to injuries and accidents. An important part of ICON's role is to link young people with appropriate services such as detoxification, methadone maintenance, sexual health and chest clinics. ICON members

Describe your programme

Futures is a twelve session programme offered to students in Grades 8-12 who are experiencing difficulty at school and/or in their community because of drug and/or alcohol use. Futures uses a small group format with trained counsellors/teachers as facilitators. Sessions are offered during school hours in a confidential school based setting. Working with youth in a small group allows them to learn about the effects of their lifestyle choices from each other. The programme capitalizes on the power of peer influence and support in moving towards abstinence. Adults function within the group as

Describe your programme

Alcohol and drug information Centre (ADIC) is a national scale, scientific recourse centre working to reduce drug use through a demand reduction programme. It is operated in 7 programmes, i.e. community interventions (micro level), public education through campaigns (macro level), media, policy advocacy, research and evaluations, human resource development and information. This structure has been developed to give a comprehensive coverage to the drug demand reduction programme. We work in 16 districts

Describe your programme

The programme consists of twelve youth representatives from five communities within District 14 of the Navajo Nation. These youth have developed their own by-laws, comprehensive plan for youth development, and meet at least once or twice a month. They plan and develop their own resources and initiatives, advocate youth interests to local and regional governance, and directly participate in community planning and development.
