Project/programme Component	Question	Yes*	No*	Partially*	Comments*
1. Situation Analysis
The Problem	1.1. Does the background/context analysis of the project/programme examine: a) the different situations of women and men, boys and girls. If yes, what strategies will be implemented to address gender-related constraints to tailor the deliverables to meet the needs of both sexes b) the expected impacts the project/programme will have on the different groups.
Counterpart Capacity	1.2 Are women/gender focused groups, associations or gender units in partner organizations consulted in the project/programme development?
Strategic Context	1.3 Is the different impact of policies, regional and national strategies on women and men, boys and girls considered?
Synergies with other projects/programmes or organizations	1.4 Are lessons learnt and best practices on gender equality and women's empowerment incorporated? Have key findings and recommendations emanating from relevant research, other UN entities and project/programme evaluations been incorporated?
Target Groups	1.5 Does the project/programme include strategies to reach out/identify the underrepresented sex that would benefit from the project/programme?
Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment	1.6. Does the project/programme include targeted actions for gender equality and women's empowerment? Are gender aspects included in non-targeted actions?
Human rights	1.7 Have national and/or international policies on women's rights been consulted?
2. Project/programme description
Location and Duration	2.1 Does the project/programme ensure that both women and men can access and participate in project/programme activities (target at least 30 % of whichever gender is underrepresented)?
Logical Framework	2.2 Are outcomes, outputs and activities designed to meet the different needs and priorities of women and men, boys and girls?
Logical Framework	2.3. Does the results framework include gender responsive indicators, targets and a baseline to monitor gender equality and women's empowerment results?
