

Economic and Social Council

Distr.: General
11 April 2012

English only

Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

Twenty-first session

Vienna, 23-27 April 2012

Item 4 of the provisional agenda*

Thematic discussion on the theme “Violence against migrants, migrant workers and their families”

Statement submitted by the International Sociological Association, a non-governmental organization in consultative status with the Economic and Social Council

The Secretary-General has received the following statement, which is being circulated in accordance with paragraphs 36 and 37 of Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/31.

* E/CN.15/2012/1.

Statement

The International Sociological Association (www.isa-sociology.org) was founded in 1949 under the auspices of UNESCO. Its goal is to represent sociologists everywhere and to advance sociological knowledge throughout the world. Its 5,000 members come from 167 countries. The ISA has partnered with Criminologists Without Borders (www.criminologists-without-borders.org) to produce a review of the scientific, academic literature on violence against migrants, migrant workers and their families, which is summarized in this statement. Criminologists Without Borders is a registered non-profit organization which provides objective information and research to inform policy and programmes dealing with crime and criminal justice.

I. Scope of Violence Against Migrants, Migrant Workers and their Families

Broad search terms were used to conduct our search, including migrant, immigrant, refugee, settler, émigré, emigrant, transient, foreign worker, alien, migrant worker, family of migrant workers, coupled with [violence, victimization, threats, harassment, hate] and [programme, help, assistance, resources], in various languages, from 2000-2011. Our reference list at the end of this statement is broadly representative of the extensive literature on this topic. “Violence” includes crimes against the person as well as labour exploitation, intentional negligence, human trafficking, hate crime, xenophobia, discrimination and racism (as per paragraph 38 of the Salvador Declaration). Some common forms of violence repeatedly mentioned in the literature include: harassment, extortion, threats of and actual physical violence; and gender-based violence against migrant women as well as within migrant families. Violence is also directed at migrant children, through forced labour or discrimination or abuse in social situations or in school.

II. Risk Factors for Victimization by Violence

Available research shows some common findings and themes:

- (a) Denial of rights and irregular status, as well as economic and social marginalization, are related to risk for violent victimization of migrant workers and their families (3, 5, 6, 9, 10, 12, 16, 19, 27, 28, 30);
- (b) Intolerance (including racism and xenophobia), exacerbated by political instability, is associated with higher rates of violence towards certain groups of migrant workers and their families (1, 4, 6, 20, 19, 21, 23);
- (c) Impunity towards perpetrators of violence against migrants, migrant workers and their families, coupled with the fear felt by victims for reporting these crimes (7), means that it is difficult to establish the characteristics of offenders: these characteristics include native born individuals, employers, other migrants (especially in the case of domestic violence), organized criminal groups as well as, in some contexts, corrupt or discriminatory State actors (4, 6, 15, 16, 17, 19, 21, 25, 26, 30);

- (d) Health and welfare needs: Criminal justice, social welfare, labour, health and educational institutions that are not sensitive to the particular needs of migrants, migrant workers and their families are more likely to be negligent in providing effective services, which can result in violent victimization (2, 3, 6, 8, 11, 14, 18, 25, 30);
- (e) Violent victimization occurs at high rates at the workplace for migrant workers (7, 10, 16, 17, 19, 25, 26, 27, 28), and there are also high prevalence rates of domestic violence within some migrant families (2, 14, 18, 29).

III. Research Gaps

The obstacles to presenting well rounded findings are that there is:

- (a) More research on victims than on perpetrators;
- (b) Less research on men than on women;
- (c) Little research on families. Research on children as family members is focused more on access to health care (including mental health) than on violent victimization;
- (d) Less research on migrants than on immigrants, and less research on violence in the country of origin or in the migratory process than at destination;
- (e) Little literature on prosecution/criminal justice effectiveness;
- (f) Little evaluation literature on prevention programmes/legislation/policy, particularly victim or offender treatment programmes, or on repatriation of victimized migrant workers;
- (g) Little information for Africa, Latin America/Caribbean or Australia. Despite a boom in literature in the 1980s and 1990s, there exists a dearth of recent literature although a resurgence of interest is evident for 2010 onwards;
- (h) Little cross-national comparative quantitative data.

Given the current state of knowledge about violence against migrants, migrant workers and their families, Member States need to invest in domestic and cross-national research efforts in order to be able to plan appropriate interventions.

Selected References

1. Baier, D., Pfeiffer, C., et al. (2010). Kinder und Jugendliche in Deutschland: Gewalterfahrung, Integration, Medienkonsum [Children and Juveniles in Germany: Violence, Integration, Media Consumption]. www.kfn.de/versions/kfn/assets/fob109.pdf.
2. Bhuyan, R. & Senturia, K. (2005). Understanding domestic violence resource utilization and survivor solutions among immigrant and refugee women. Journal of Interpersonal Violence, 20(8), 895-901.
3. Brotherton, D. & Barrios, L. (2011). Banished to the homeland: Dominican deportees and their stories of exile. New York: Columbia University Press.

4. Bunar, N. (2007). Hate crimes against immigrants in Sweden and community responses. American Behavioral Scientist, 51(2), 166-181.
5. Capuano, R. G. (2011). Immigrants as victims of crime in Italy: An exploratory study. LAP LAMBERT.
6. Casimiro, S., Hancock, P. & Northcote, J. (2007). Isolation and insecurity: Resettlement issues among Muslim refugee women in Perth, Western Australia. Australian Journal of Social Issues, 42(1), 55-69.
7. Chaiyanukij, C. (2004). Violence against women migrant workers in Thailand. Journal of The Medical Association of Thailand = Chotmaihet Thangphaet, 87 Suppl 3S223-S226.
8. Civan, O. & Gokalp, A. (2011). Göçmen İşçi Kavramı ve Göçmen İşçilerin İş Sağlığı ve Güvenliği. Calisma ve Toplum, 1(28), 233-263. [The Concept of Immigrant Laborer and the Labor Health and Security of Immigrant Laborers].
9. Diaz, G. & Kuhner, G. (2007). Globalización, Seguridad Internacional y Seguridad Humana: Experiencias de las Mujeres Migrantes Detenidas en México. www.migrationinformation.org/Feature/display.cfm?ID=648.
10. Donato, K. M., Aguilera, M., & Wakabayashi, C. (2005). Immigration policy and employment conditions of U.S immigrants from Mexico, Nicaragua, and the Dominican Republic. International Migration, 43(5), 5-29.
11. Fong, R. S., Vogel, B. L., & Vogel, R. E. (2008). The correlates of school violence: An examination of factors linked to assaultive behavior in a rural middle school with a large migrant population. Journal of School Violence, 7(3), 24-47.
12. Guerette, R. T. (2006). Preventing migrant deaths: A possible role for situational crime prevention. Pp. 185-198 in Migration, Culture, Conflict, Crime and Terrorism: Advances in Criminology. Burlington, VT: Ashgate.
13. García España, E. (2007). Victimización de inmigrantes. Pp. 153-178 in Pérez Alonso, E. A. & Zugaldía Espinar, J. M. (Eds.) El derecho penal ante el fenómeno de la inmigración. Valencia: Tirant lo Blanch.
14. Ghafournia, N. (2011). Battered at home, played down in policy: Migrant women and domestic violence in Australia. Aggression & Violent Behavior, 16(3), 207-213.
15. Gülcür, L., & İlkkaracan, P. (2002). The “Natasha” experience: Migrant sex workers from the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe in Turkey. Women's Studies International Forum, 25(4), 411-421.
16. Jokinen, A. Ollus, N. & Aromaa, K. (Eds.) (2011). Trafficking for forced labour and labour exploitation in Finland, Poland, and Estonia. Helsinki: HEUNI.
17. Jureidini, R. & Moukarbel, N. (2004). Female Sri Lankan domestic labour in Lebanon: Contractual, slavery-like practices and conditions. Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, 30(4), 581-607.
18. Kugel, C., Retzlaff, C. et al. (2009). Familias con voz: Community survey results from an intimate partner violence prevention project with migrant workers. Journal of Family Violence, 24(8), 649-660.

19. McDonald, W. F. (Ed.) (2009). Immigration, Crime and Justice. Bingley, UK: Emerald.
20. McDowell, M. & Wonders, N. (2009). Keeping migrants in their place: Technologies of control and racialized public space in Arizona. Social Justice, 36(2), 54-72.
21. Mikulska, A. (2010). Rasizm w Polsce. Raport z badań wśród osób, które doświadczyły przemocy ze względu na swoje pochodzenie etniczne, rasowe lub narodowe. Retrieved from www.hfhrpol.waw.pl/pliki/HFPC_Rasizm_w_Polsce.pdf [Racism in Poland].
22. Nekorjak, M. (2009). Klientský systém a ukrajinská pracovní migrace Do České republiky. Multikulturní Centrum Praha. [Ukrainian Work Migration to the Czech Republic.] http://aa.ecn.cz/img_upload/224c0704b7b7746e8a07df9a8b20c098/MNekorjak_KlientskySystemAUkrainskaPracovniMigrace_1.pdf.
23. Neocosmos, M. (2006). From Foreign Natives to Native Foreigners: Explaining xenophobia in contemporary South Africa. Dakar: Codesria. www.codesria.org/spip.php?article1293&lang=en.
24. Petrozziello, A. J. & Wooding, B. (2011). Fanm nan fwonyè, Fanm toupatou: Una Mirada a la Violencia Contra las Mujeres Migrantes Haitianas, en tránsito y desplazadas en la frontera dominico.haitiana (Elías Piña/Belladère). Santo Domingo: Colectiva Mujer y Salud.
25. Poinasamy, K. (2011). Protecting migrant domestic workers in the UK. Gender and Development, 19(1), 95-95-104.
26. Pun, N. & Lu, H. (2010). A culture of violence: The labor subcontracting system and collective action by construction workers in post-Socialist China. China Journal, 64, 143-158.
27. Rushing, R., Watts, C., & Rushing, S. (2005). Living the reality of forced sex work: Perspectives from young migrant women sex workers in northern Vietnam. The Journal of Midwifery & Women's Health, 50(4), e41-e44.
28. Strobl, S. (2009). Policing housemaids: The criminalization of domestic workers in Bahrain. British Journal of Criminology, 49(2), 165-183.
29. Tyyskä, V. (2009). Families and Violence in Punjabi and Tamil communities in Toronto. Working Paper 74, CERIS. www.ceris.metropolis.net.
30. Varia, N. (2011). "Sweeping change?" A review of recent reforms on protections for migrant domestic workers in Asia and the Middle East. Canadian Journal of Women & the Law, 23(1), 265-287.

Please take our brief and anonymous survey and tell us whether this Statement was useful to you: www.surveymonkey.com/s/R332TFX.