

John Grajales, Senior Specialist: RRAG, Arin-Carib, South-South coop between Colombia and Peru

John Grajales: Technical Specialist and Project Manager of the Department against Transnational Organized Crime (DTCO), of the Organization of American States (OAS) since 2016. He joined the OAS in 2006 as a technical specialist in the Program for the creation and strengthening of Financial Intelligence Units in the region where he was responsible for training analysts from most of the FIUs in Central and South America. He was an Analyst at the Financial Intelligence Unit of Colombia from 2000 to 2006 and also a consultant to the IMF and the EGMONT Group on FIU capacity development projects. He has participated as evaluator and reviewer in the framework of the mutual evaluation processes of the FATF Style Regional Bodies in the Americas, and as lecturer in seminars and workshops on financial intelligence and information analysis. He got a degree as Cadastral and Geodesic engineer from the District University of Bogotá, a mayor in Databases and GIS from the same university, a Master's degree in Strategic Management from the International Ibero-American University and a Master's degree in Information and Communication Technologies from the European University Miguel de Cervantes in Spain.