

Berit Kieselbach works as Technical Officer for the Prevention of Violence team in the WHO Department for Social Determinants of Health (SDH). She develops evidence-based guidance and supports countries in improving the health sector response to violence against children.

Prior to joining WHO in 2011, she worked as health advisor for German Development Cooperation (GIZ) and various humanitarian agencies, supporting cooperation programmes in Asia, Africa and Latin America with a focus on health systems development, mental health and violence prevention. Berit has an academic background in Psychology (MSc) and Public Health (MPH).