

Marco Musumeci is a Programme Management Officer at the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute (UNICRI). He currently manages a portfolio of several projects focused on counterfeiting and organized crime, with activities ranging from research and public/private cooperation to the design of training and awareness materials. He holds a Masters' degree in criminology and international criminal policy and he is co-author of several UNICRI publications.