

Ms. Siri Bjune is the head of the UNODC Global Maritime Crime Programme based in Colombo, Sri Lanka. Her focus areas are programme strategy, portfolio development, partner relations, team management and programme visibility, in addition to backstopping the teams in the Mediterranean, Southeast Asia & the Pacific Ocean and Indian Ocean East. She started with UNODC as an Associate Expert within the anti-corruption branch in 2007 and later joined the Global Maritime Crime Programme in 2013. Before moving to Sri Lanka, Siri was based in Nigeria where she was responsible for programme development and implementation in the Gulf of Guinea with main focus on legal reform and capacity building in maritime law enforcement. She holds a law degree from the University of Oslo, Norway.