

The Lost Decade - Neglect for harm reduction funding and the health crisis among people who use drugs

Olga Szubert, Campaigns and Advocacy Manager

September 2018

HARM REDUCTION
INTERNATIONAL

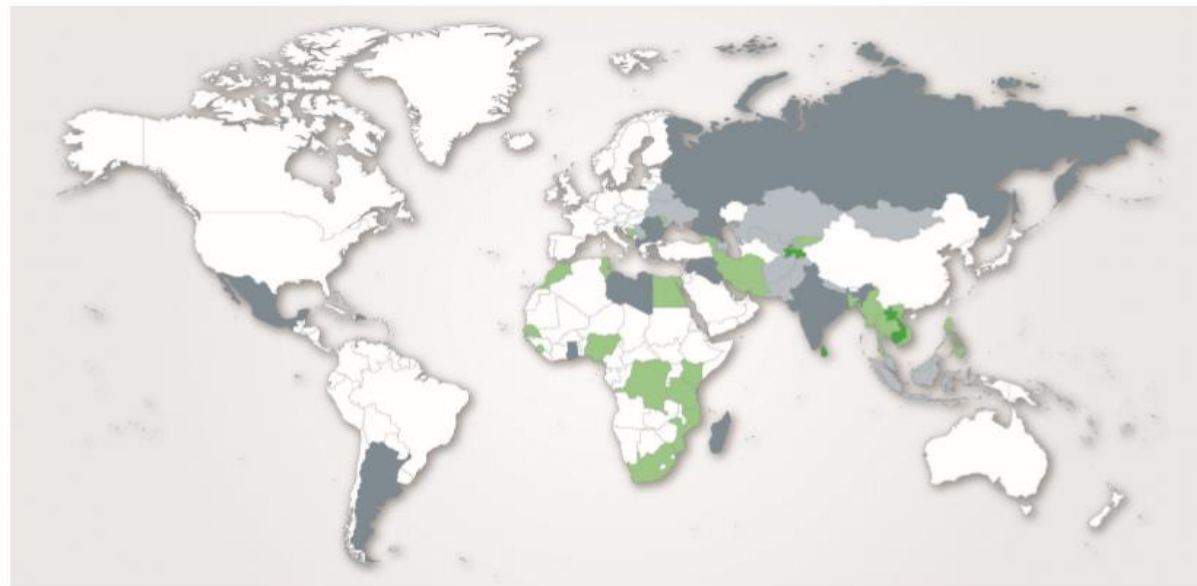

Funding for lifesaving harm reduction services in low- and middle-income countries is just 13% of what's needed

This funding gap threatens the global HIV response

Overall harm reduction funding in LMICs has flat-lined

- Overall level of harm reduction funding in LMICs is the same as in 2007
- Just 1% of US$19 billion donor and government spend on HIV in 2016
- Just 4 cents per day is spent per person who inject drugs in LMICs
- Most funding for harm reduction still comes from international donors (64%), however it is one-quarter less than it was a decade ago
- National governments are not stepping in to scale up funding for harm reduction

■ < 4 cents

■ 4 – 10 cents

■ 10 cents – US$1

■ > US$1

The majority of people who inject drugs live in upper middle-income countries

55% in UMICs

Yet, harm reduction funding is lowest in these countries

$0.09 per person per day in low and lower middle-income countries

$0.02 per person per day in UMICs

People who use drugs are being left behind

Donor funding for harm reduction has fallen 24% since 2007

New HIV infections among people who inject drugs increased 33% from 2011-15

Recommendations

- International donors increase harm reduction funding in line with epidemiological need and do not withdraw or reduce funds without adequate transition plans in place.
- National governments invest in their own harm reduction responses. They should track, and critically evaluate their drug policy spending and redirect resources from ineffective drug law enforcement to harm reduction.
- International donors, including donor governments, invest in multilateral funding mechanisms such as the Global Fund and ensure that UNODC is sufficiently funded.
- International donors ensure financial support for overdose prevention, including naloxone and opioid substitution therapy.

Thank you!

See full report, 'The lost decade: Neglect for harm reduction funding and the health crisis for people who use drugs,' at:

www.hri.global/harm-reduction-funding

olga.szubert@hri.global

Research and analysis undertaken by Charlotte Davies, Professor Vivian Hope and Professor Marie-Claire van Hout of the Public Health Institute, Liverpool John Moores University, UK with support from HRI.

With thanks to support from

