

PROVISION OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE BY G20 ANTI-CORRUPTION WORKING GROUP COUNTRIES

INFORMATION PROVIDED BY GERMANY

The 2017-2018 G20 Anti-Corruption Implementation Plan recognizes that, through provision of technical assistance<sup>1</sup>, G20 countries can assist other countries in becoming States Party to, and effectively implementing, relevant international instruments such as the United Nations Convention Against Corruption (UNCAC).

1. National anti-corruption programmes/tools that could be shared with other countries:

German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development \(BMZ\) Strategy Paper 4/2012, Anti-Corruption and Integrity in German Development Policy

The paper highlights the central role of anti-corruption in German development policy and defines steps to be taken by Germany's official development cooperation actors. It is based on a multi actor approach encompassing the state, civil society and the private sector. To tackle corruption, the strategy comprises three levels of interventions: anti-corruption reforms in partner countries, compliance and risk management and international commitments.

Strategic Partnership with the U4 Anti-Corruption Resource Centre

Germany is a founding member of the U4 Anti-Corruption Resource Center in Bergen/Norway. U4 provides research and publications on development-related corruption issues, online trainings for partner agencies, research-on-demand for practitioners, and targeted workshops in developing countries. U4 also serves as a valuable platform for exchange and coordination among like-minded donors.

3. Recent technical assistance provided

GIZ together with UNODC has been supporting the Judicial Integrity Group (JIG) since 2005. The JIG is a group of senior judges whose work includes the development of the Bangalore Principles of Judicial Conduct. Support for the Judicial Integrity Group has recently been provided through the GIZ sectoral programme “Anti-Corruption and Integrity”, commissioned by BMZ. Following from a conference jointly organised with the Inter-American Court of Human Rights on Judicial Ethics and the Fight against corruption in April 2017 in Costa Rica, the group had a prominent role in April 2018 at the first of a series of conferences hosted by BMZ to address “Rule of Law, Justice and Development in Africa”.

Another longstanding partner of BMZ is Transparency International (TI). It supports the TI-Secretariat, based in Berlin, through funds for international organisations. In addition, in 2014 a Strategic Partnership Agreement was initiated for the period until the end of 2015 which was renewed for the period 2016-2020 through the signing of a „Joint Declaration of Intent“. Activities that are/were funded through the partnership include TI’s Game Changer Initiative “Journalists for Transparency” which promotes investigative journalism on corruption. The Game Changer Initiatives accompany the International Anti-Corruption Conference (IACC), which is organized by TI and takes place every two years. Through the support for the “Journalists for Transparency Initiative”, Germany was one of the main partners of the 17th IACC which took place in December 2016 in Panama.” The next IACC will take place in October in Copenhagen, Denmark. Germany will again be one of the main partners.

In addition, against the backdrop that the African Union designated 2018 as the African year against corruption, the BMZ supports TI’s project on enhanced engagement of African civil society in monitoring the anti-corruption commitments made by their leaders. In 10 African countries the implementation of the African Union Convention on Preventing and Combatting Corruption is being monitored and stakeholders of the African Governance Platform are being engaged.

4. Challenges and gaps in providing technical assistance

It is very difficult to measure the impact of anti-corruption reforms, this is also true for German Development Cooperation projects. Governance programs need a long-term support and it is often challenging to show quick wins or successes that are easily communicable.

Another obstacle is policy coherence. Anti-corruption touches upon different areas of responsibility within the German government. Therefore, coordination is vital but can also be time-consuming.

It is difficult to find personal and technical capacities for programmes that support effective fight against corruption. Often German or international experts might not be available or able to work abroad or are needed in their current posts.

5. Current anti-corruption priorities

For the IRZ, a priority is to enhance the personal and technical capacity for the effective fight against corruption by training through peers.

Current priority of the BMZ is the “Marshall Plan with Africa”. Combatting Corruption takes a prominent role in this strategy and is seen as a major obstacle for private sector investment in Africa.

Aligned to this, digitalization remains a high priority for the BMZ. “The Digital Africa initiative” is a tool to implement digital solutions in German development cooperation. Especially in the fields of transparency and participation, digital solutions can prove to be valuable for fighting corruption.

Migration and displacement remain important priorities for German development cooperation. Corruption is seen as one of the causes for forced migration and displacement as well as an obstacle to the (re)integration of migrants and refugees. One initiative to tackle these challenges are the “Federal Government’s Guidelines on Preventing Crises, Resolving Conflicts, Building Peace”. The guidelines contain a clear commitment on the part of the German Government to prevent crises and to enhance civilian instruments.

- 1 Technical assistance should be understood in line with UNCAC provisions, and cover relevant programs aimed at strengthening capacities in the prevention and fight against corruption as well as both public and private sectors’ integrity*
