NATIONAL ANTI-CORRUPTION REFERRAL:
Key contacts in Vigilance and Anti-Corruption desks across India
As the Representative of the UNODC Regional Office for South Asia, I am pleased to present to you the ‘Anti-corruption referral on vigilance and anti-corruption desks in India’ - a product developed by UNODC with the support of the Siemens Integrity Initiative. This Anti-corruption Referral provides in one document information on the numerous anti-corruption and vigilance desks that exist across different Government departments and in different geographical areas of India.

India has a large and vibrant business sector that interacts with an equally active, large and complex government sector. As well known, the interaction of the private sector with the Government machinery is vulnerable to corruption too. An important antidote to corruption is an informed voice that speaks up against it. It is therefore important to build an environment and culture in which responsible reporting against corruption is possible and encouraged.

The United Nations Convention against Corruption (UNCAC), with UNODC mandated to assist countries in its implementation, contains provisions in this regard namely under UNCAC article 39-‘Cooperation between national authorities and the private sector’. This provision highlights the need to encourage a country’s nationals and other persons with habitual residence in its territory to report to national authorities the commission of offences related to corruption. In follow-up to the ratification of UNCAC by India in May 2011, UNODC engaged in a dialogue with the Government entities, the private sector, NGOs and the youth on how to promote corporate integrity and probity in procurement. During these interactions, participants mentioned that they often did not know where to lodge a complaint on corrupt acts or where to seek assistance. Subsequently, the idea of an Anti-corruption Referral was born. The present referral focuses on the twelve Government services which the private sector interacts mostly with, including the anti-corruption and vigilance desks that both the Central Government of India and its twenty-eight* state and seven Union Territory governments have established across their different departments in all geographic areas.

The present referral aims at ensuring that information is available in one place and easily accessible for persons seeking assistance or seeking to lodge a complaint.

I am confident that you will find this ‘Anti-corruption Referral on vigilance and anti-corruption desks in India’ useful and beneficial for your work and interaction with your partners with the ultimate goal to reduce corrupt offences and build clean business.

“Corruption is a challenge that no country or sector can claim to be immune to”, as acknowledged by the UNODC report on “Corporate Integrity - Incentives to corporate integrity in accordance with the UNCAC” (published in May 2013).

Albeit numerous studies on corruption have been published in India, a significant gap exists in the awareness of ‘where’ and ‘how’ to report corruption in an appropriate manner. For a lay person in India, it is difficult to identify the relevant contact person in a government department – at the national or state level to report an act of corruption in an appropriate manner. This is primarily on account of the existence of different organizational structures for different departments and information being scattered across multiple sources in the public domain. Secondly, in light of the recently (February 2014) approved Whistle Blowers Protection Bill 2011, providing information about the anti-corruption or vigilance desks where a complaint can be made would assume increased importance.

Hence, a need was felt for the creation of the “National Anti-corruption Referral: Key contacts in Vigilance and Anti-corruption desks across India” (hereinafter referred to as “The Referral”). The Referral has been compiled with the primary objective of providing all the relevant information in a single place, thereby facilitating the common citizen of India in registering an act of corruption in a timely manner. In particular, the Referral is easy to search and navigate.

The Referral includes the following:

» Details of officials from the government departments and organizations in the top 12 service areas which have a high level of interaction with business or private sector on a day-to-day basis.

» Details of bodies which are primarily responsible for dealing with business corruption, which include anti-corruption bureaus, vigilance desks and nodal agencies, existing at the central and the state levels in India.

Background and Research Methodology

The initiative to create this Referral was taken under two of UNODC’s projects – a) Public-Private Partnership for Probity in Public Procurement; b) Incentives to Corporate Integrity and Cooperation in accordance with UNCAC. As the lead agency mandated to assist countries across the globe to strengthen implementation of the UNCAC, in India, the UNODC has placed emphasis on addressing corruption in the Indian business sector. In line with this, under the Siemens Integrity Initiative, UNODC is implementing these two projects aimed at strengthening transparency and integrity in the private sector in accordance with the specific provisions of the UNCAC. These are namely UNCAC article 9 (public procurement and management of public finances, article 26 (liability of legal person), article 32 (protection of witnesses and victims), article 37 (cooperation with law enforcement), and article 39 (cooperation between national authorities and public sector).

To create the Referral, it was especially pertinent to understand the bureaucratic framework and structure of the government machinery operating in India and its interaction with the private sector.

The process to compile the Referral has been articulated in 5 stages outlined below.

Stage 1: At the outset, extensive public record research was conducted to identify a comprehensive set of government ministries and departments at the national and state levels, from the perspective of their engagement with the private sector.

Stage 2: In addition to the government ministries, the research process has also encapsulated information from the perspective of the business sector’s interaction with the government. The same has been captured in the context of different stages of the lifecycle of a business (e.g. starting a business, obtaining permits, closure of a business entity, etc.) and the impact of regulations during these stages. Numerous studies on anti-corruption were referred to, amongst which it is important to refer to the study by the World Bank, entitled “Doing Business 2013”.

Stage 3: Subsequently, a set of senior professionals from the private sector were interviewed, to gain an insight into the selection of government departments which tend to have the highest interaction with the private sector. Thereafter, a professional survey was conducted to identify the top 10 government services (departments) which have a greater private sector interaction. The survey was published to over 100,000 public and private sector officials over a period of 2 months.

Stage 4: In addition to the interviews and survey, external inputs were gathered from a variety of key stakeholders, including private and public sector participants, representatives from the chambers of industry, law enforcement, vigilance agencies and other multilateral agencies. The list of priority departments were discussed and shared with participants (from the afore-mentioned sectors) at two “Focus Group Meetings,” held at New Delhi and Bangalore on January 28 and 29, 2014, respectively. The applicable recommendations from these meetings were incorporated in the conceptualization and framework of the Referral. (For further details, please refer to the Annexure, section b on the Focus Group Meetings)

Stage 5: Finally, for the purpose of this Referral, the results of the interview process, the survey and the recommendations made at the Focus Group Meetings were collated to define and identify a set of 12 departments (with which the private sector has a high level of interaction with the Government) and 13 anti-corruption and vigilance desks (agencies) in India. The identified departments and agencies are outlined below:

Anti-Corruption & Vigilance bureaus
1. Anti-Corruption Bureau (ACB)
2. Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI)
3. Central Information Commission (CIC)
4. Central Vigilance Commission (CVC)

6. Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT)
7. Directorate General of Income Tax (DGIT)
8. Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI)
9. District Vigilance and Monitoring Committees (DVMC)
10. Enforcement Directorate (ED)
11. Lokayukta Institutions
12. State Information Commissions (SIC)
13. State Vigilance Commissions (SVC)
Departments identified with high private sector interaction

1. Credit Institutions
2. Customs Department
3. Health Department, Ministry of Health and Family Welfare
4. Highway Authorities
5. Industrial Development Authorities (IDA)
6. Land and Property Registration Authorities (LPRA)
7. Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA)
8. Municipal Corporations
9. Power Department
10. Public Works Department (PWD)
11. Tax Authorities
12. Urban Development Authorities (UDA)
13. Tax Authorities
14. Urban Development Authorities

The information of these departments and agencies has been provided at the national and state levels. An important element of the definition of the scope for the Referral included the selection of economic centres in each state. An economic centre has been defined as a city considered to generate significant economic activity for the state and is home to a larger population base in a particular state. For the purpose of this Referral, a total of 82 economic centres have been incorporated for profiling. This includes the capitals of all 28 states*, capitals of 7 Union Territories (UTs) and all cities which have a population greater than 700,000 (as per the statistics maintained by the India Census of 2011).

The Referral has been designed in a user-friendly manner. It includes detailed indexing which highlights the placement of profiles of officials who need to be contacted in the event of registration of a complaint. Specifically, the introductory section to each department contains a Master Structure, created to illustrate our understanding of the government hierarchy and the extent of coverage in a particular department. Since this Referral is the first of its kind, it presents the first phase with information about selected Government departments with high private sector interaction in major economic centres of India. As the use of the Referral increases, there will be a need to consider many more departments with wider geographical representation.

*NOTE: The Andhra Pradesh Reorganization Act, 2014 (passed in February 2014) regulates the provisions pertaining to the bifurcation of Andhra Pradesh into two states, Telangana and residuary Andhra Pradesh. This bifurcation shall be implemented on 2 June 2014. In this context, the information in the National Anti-corruption Referral relating to this state is contained under the state of Andhra Pradesh.

How to use the Referral?

The Referral consists of approximately 10,000 profiles, including 25 Chapters (i.e. government departments and agencies) across 28 states*, 7 Union Territories (UT) and 82 economic centres (as defined above).

Index - To make this Referral user-friendly, a detailed index has been prepared which precedes the 25 Chapters. At the outset, the information relating to the Chapters, States, UTs and Economic Centres has been compiled alphabetically. Having said that, there are more components to the format of the information than just the alphabetical order.

In this context, the format of the index is created in two ways, ‘State-wise’ and ‘Department-wise’. This has been elaborated below.

» State-wise index – In this format, profiles have been arranged on the basis of a state/UT/economic centre. For example, information relating to departments within Andhra Pradesh is contained under the section of Andhra Pradesh-State Level and under its 3 defined economic centres (i.e. Hyderabad, Vijayawada, Visakhapatnam). In this example, if information regarding the profiles relating to Credit Institution in Andhra Pradesh is to be located in this Referral, the same can be found in the State-wise index under the section of Andhra Pradesh (reference number 5.2.1.101). Additionally, the same can also be found in the Department-wise index under the section of Credit Institutions (reference number 5.2.1.101).

» Department-wise index – In this format, profiles have been arranged on the basis of organizations that exist within the defined set of 25 departments/agencies. As mentioned in the above example, information regarding the profiles relating to Credit Institution in Andhra Pradesh can be found in the Department-wise index under the section of Credit Institutions (reference number 5.2.1.101).

» Reference ID - In addition to the indexing and alphabetic format, it is helpful to note that each profile has been designated with a unique reference ID number, which is created in a particular sequence. For example, the reference ID number 5.20.4.101 has been designed in the following format, whereby 5 represents the name of the chapter (in this instance, Credit Institutions), 20 represents the state (in this instance, the state of Maharashtra), 4 represents the city (city of Mumbai) and eventually, 101 represents the number of the profile (in this instance, the profile is of Maharashtra State Financial Corporation, Mumbai Office).

Deputation of Officers – The profiles included in chapter 4 (Central Vigilance Commission) and chapter 7 (Department of Personnel and Training, Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions) are of the officers sent on deputation to government institutions or public sector undertakings. Therefore, if information regarding a profile from either of these two chapters is to be identified, the same may be found in the introductory section of these 2 chapters (available on page numbers 74 and 86, respectively). For example, to identify information on a Vigilance Commissioner deputed to Airports Authority of India, please refer to Chapter 4 (CVC), the section “Central Vigilance Officers (CVOs) in Government Organizations”.

Multiple Jurisdictions – In some cases, a government department/agency may hold responsibility for multiple jurisdictions. In such a case, the particular department/agency has been profiled under all the jurisdictions which are under its control and responsibility. For example, the CBI office of Chennai (namely ACB Chennai) exercises its jurisdiction over Puducherry (UT) and Tamil Nadu (state). Hence, the profiles of ACB Chennai can be located on page numbers 27 and 30, respectively.

The Right to Information (RTI) Act, 2005 was designed to set up a practical regime for citizens to access information available with public authorities, in order to promote transparency in their working. The RTI Act provides for the constitution of the Commission to be responsible for the implementation of the Act, exercising powers conferred on it under Section 18 of the Act.

The Commission, under Section 18, consists of one Chief Information Commissioner (hereinafter referred to as “CIC”), who heads the Commission, and not more than 10 Central Information Commissioners appointed under the CIC. India’s first CIC was appointed on 26 October 2005.

Chief Information Commissioner (CIC)

» The candidates for the CIC must be persons of eminence in public life with wide knowledge and experience in law, science and technology, social service, management, journalism, mass media or administration and governance.

» A member of parliament (MP) or a member of the legislature (MLA) of any State or Union Territory cannot be appointed as the CIC.

» The CIC is not permitted to hold any other office of profit, conduct any business, pursue any other profession or be connected with any political party.

» The CIC Appointment Committee includes Prime Minister (Chair), Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha and one Union Cabinet Minister to be nominated by the Prime Minister.

Role and Responsibility

The Commission is responsible for acting upon complaints submitted by the individuals who have not been successful in submitting their request to a Central Public Information Officer. This could be because perhaps the respective Officer has refused to receive the application for information to be provided under the RTI Act.

The Commission has a duty to receive a complaint from a person who has received no response to his/her information request within the specified time limit, or who think the fees charged are unreasonable. The complaint could be on any other matter relating to obtaining information under the RTI Act.

Organization Structure
Overview

For the purpose of the Referral, the Central Vigilance Commission (hereinafter referred to as “CVC”) is an apex body, set up by the Central Government in February 1964, to advise Central Government agencies in the field of vigilance. Under the Resolution on “Public Interest Disclosure and Protection of Informer”, dated April 2004, the Government of India has authorized the CVC as the “Designated Agency” to receive written complaints for disclosure on any allegation of corruption or misuse of office and recommend appropriate action.

As defined above, the CVC is an apex body which monitors and advises ongoing vigilance activity in government departments, Central Government Organizations and Public Sector Undertakings (PSUs). Further to the promulgation of an Ordinance by the President, the CVC was made a multi-member Commission with “statutory status” with effect from 25 August 1998.

The CVC consists of the following –
» A Central Vigilance Commissioner – Chairperson
» 2 Vigilance Commissioners – Members
» Over 500 Central Vigilance Officers (hereinafter referred to as “CVO”)

Role and Responsibility

The CVC is deemed as the apex vigilance institution, free of control from any executive authority, which monitors vigilance issues under the Central Government and advising various authorities in Central Government organizations in planning, executing and reviewing vigilance activities.

The CVOs are considerably higher level officers who are appointed to each Central Government department/public sector organisations to assist the Head of the department/organisation on vigilance matters.

Overall, the role of CVOs has been divided in two categories - preventive and punitive responsibilities. The CVOs are expected to examine the existing rules and procedures of the applicable organization with a view to eliminate or minimise the scope of corruption/ malpractices. They identify areas vulnerable to corruption and hence enforce strict vigilance detail in these places. On the punitive side, CVOs endure speedy processing of vigilance cases at all stages.
Scope of Profiles

The scope of the Referral covers profiles of associated senior officials of the CVC, of the vigilance desk and RTI officers (including public information officers and appellate authorities).

Registering a Complaint

In the event any member of the general public of India would like to register a complaint against public servants, wherein allegations of corruption are involved, he/she may register a complaint at the following website https://portal.cvc.gov.in/portal/index.jsp

The National Anti-Corruption Referral: Key contacts in Vigilance and Anti-Corruption desks across India (hereinafter referred to as “The Referral”) has been compiled to provide all the relevant information in a single place, in order to facilitate a common citizen of India in registering an act of corruption in a timely manner.

To create the Referral, it was pertinent to understand the bureaucratic framework and structure of the government machinery operating in India and its interaction with the private sector. A prioritization strategy was required for the identification of government departments that are most vulnerable to corruption. The strategy designed was commensurate with the overall objective of creating this Referral. Following this strategy, our research process enumerated 12 government departments and 13 vigilance agencies to be profiled as part of the Referral. The process to compile the Referral (completed over the period of October 2013- March 2014) has been articulated in 5 stages outlined below.

Stage 1: At the outset, extensive public record research was conducted to identify a comprehensive set of government ministries and departments at the national and state levels, from the perspective of their engagement with the private sector. Over 200 departments were identified through government source web links which interacted with the private sector on a regular basis.

Stage 2: In addition to the government ministries, the research process has also encapsulated information from the perspective of the business sector’s interaction with the government. The same has been captured in the context of different stages of the lifecycle of a business (e.g. starting a business, obtaining permits, closure of a business entity, etc.) and the impact of regulations during these stages. Numerous studies on anti-corruption were referred to, amongst which it is important to refer to the study by the World Bank, entitled “Doing Business 2013”. The Doing Business 2013 report provides a reference point to measure and track regulatory changes across the business lifecycle.

Stage 3: Subsequently, a set of senior professionals from the private sector were interviewed, to gain an insight into the selection of government departments which tend to have the highest interaction with the private sector. Thereafter, a professional survey was conducted to identify the top 10 government services (departments) which have a greater private sector interaction. The survey (and additional telephonic interviews conducted with senior private sector professionals) enabled the prioritization of services per private sector’s view. The survey was published to over 100,000 public and private sector officials over a period of two months during 2013-14. Responses were obtained from 119 private sector and business professionals from various sectors like financial services, manufacturing, health care, real estate, power, and information technology. The respondents were from all levels of management, with senior management having the maximum number of respondents i.e. 67% of total responses. Almost over 80% of these responses were from the business and private sector.

Challenges faced during the research: The research teams faced several challenges while attempting to elicit information and opinion on the interaction experienced by private sector professionals with varied departments of the government. It may be noteworthy that the responses from the private sector, both during the telephonic interview and surveys, were not particularly forthcoming regarding their exposure to graft and interaction with the government departments. The entities seemed to be cautious and perceptive in their responses. However, In addition, the research was conducted between the months of October 2013 and February 2014. Any reports or information used for the purpose of this report will be as per data available in this timeframe.

Stage 4: In addition to the interviews and survey, external inputs were gathered from a variety of key stakeholders, including private and public sector participants, representatives from the chambers of industry, law enforcement, vigilance agencies and other multilateral agencies. The list of priority departments were discussed and shared with participants (from the afore-mentioned sectors) at two “Focus Group Meetings,” held at New Delhi and Bangalore on January 28 and 29, 2014, respectively. The applicable recommendations from these meetings were incorporated in the conceptualization and framework of the Referral.

These meetings were attended by participants from the departments of the Government of India, including investigative and vigilance agencies, chambers of commerce and relevant public sector agencies.

10. S. Sen, Principal Adviser, Confederation of Indian Industry
The participants at both the meetings broadly agreed with the overall research methodology and coverage of government departments for the current phase of the Referral. Some of the broad recommendations made during the meetings are listed as below:

Recommendations:

1. Department of Health/ Ministry of Health and Family Welfare: Primary and secondary research results corroborate that health departments have high levels of interaction with the private sector. In recent times, it has emerged to be one of the major partnerships in national health development, service delivery and training. Hence, the department of Health has been included in the scope for the profiles to be included in the first phase of the Referral.

2. Ministry of Human Resource Development (Education departments) and the departments of Food and Public Distribution: At the meetings, it was widely accepted that the department of Education has been staffed with massive resources, on account of the intense level of corruption that this sector is exposed to. However, it was agreed that given the scope of this phase of the Referral (limited to inclusion of the departments which have the maximum level of interaction with the private sector), this department was dropped from the list of priority departments. However, this department is recommended for inclusion in the next phase of the Referral.

3. The Ministries of Environment (including licensing and natural resource management), Coal and Mines and the Department of Pharmaceutical are illustrations of departments that are believed to encounter high levels of graft (especially in the medium to large corporate segment). However, these have been excluded from our first phase of priority departments, on account of their limited interaction with the private sector at large.

The discussion and the recommendations of the Focus Group participants, at New Delhi and Bangalore, illustrate the high level of interest that a subject such as anti-corruption continues to generate in business and society.

Stage 5: Finally, for the purpose of this Referral, the results of the interview process, the survey and the recommendations made at the Focus Group Meetings were collated to define and identify a set of 12 departments (with which the private sector has a high level of interaction with the Government) and 13 anti-corruption and vigilance desks (agencies) in India. The identified departments and agencies are outlined below:

Next Phase

We acknowledge that the profiles of government departments, vigilance agencies and officials, contained in this Referral are clearly representative of Phase I of this project. On account of the research process and the feedback gathered regarding the remaining number of departments, we recognize a veritable need for subsequent phases of the Referral. The subsequent phases would seek to include the next set of government departments which are exposed to greater interaction with the business and private sectors.
