TACKLING CORRUPTION THROUGH PUBLIC-PRIVATE DIALOGUE

4 November 2015, 15:00-17:00

Conference Room B, Pavilion 7, Lenexpo Exhibition Complex

Corruption is a crime with far reaching consequences for governments and businesses. While businesses are widely perceived to be a perpetrator of corruption it is also very much a victim with a compelling stake in reform. The use of the Public-Private Dialogue (PPD) approach has proven a viable platform through which inclusive and meaningful cross-sector engagement can help strengthen anti-corruption efforts both at the national and regional levels.

Key issues to be discussed:

- How effective has PPD proven to be in helping to strengthen the global anti-corruption effort?
- What are the do's and don'ts to sustain the collaborative momentum in PPD?
- What roles can UNODC, development agencies and civil society organizations play in promoting and facilitating PPD?
