

In 2011 the Ministry of Interior compiled the draft "Government Anti-Corruption Programme for 2012-2016". The document was compiled in cooperation with the Chancellery of the Prime Minister, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Central Anticorruption Bureau, the Internal Security Agency and the National Police Headquarters. The document contains numerous tasks and activities aimed at preventing and combating corruption pertaining to the issues of policy and practice in preventing corruption, public reporting, involvement of society in preventing corruption as well.

The primary aim of the programme is to reduce the level of corruption in Poland, among other through strengthening anticorruption prevention, education in society and public administration as well. The well-formed awareness in a/m area constitutes the foundation which will reduce the occurrence of this pathology permanently. It is assumed that the programme implementation will contribute to strengthen belief in society that corruption is not a standard in democratic state but pathology.

The one of detailed aims of the programme is to strengthen preventive and educational measures. The main activities will include:

1. to develop and implement the coordinated national anticorruption policy.
2. to strengthen the internal mechanisms of anticorruption in public administration.
3. to increase the active society participation, including NGOs, in preventing and combating corruption and strengthening of cooperation with public authorities.
4. to form the anticorruption attitudes in society.
5. to fulfil the international commitments of Poland on corruption prevention and education.

In the context of anticorruption policy (Article 5 of the UN Convention) is stipulated in the programme that its implementation will come into effect at four levels. The first level is represented by the level of institutional coordinators, the second level is the interdepartmental executives committees, the third level is represented by the institution, which is responsible for implementing the programme – the Central Anticorruption Bureau and the fourth level – the Cabinet. The programme implementation will be coordinated at all a/m levels. Thus, the tasks and activities, which are included in the programme, will be implemented by the appropriate ministries and institutions under the supervision of the Central Anticorruption Bureau. In the context of practice in preventing corruption is planned, in particular:

1. to develop mechanisms to respond to the threat of corruption in relationships public official - claimant, on the basis of the most common corruption risks which occur in positions of public officials.

2. to strengthen the internal activities of control bodies and internal audit.
3. to strengthen the international cooperation in corruption prevention.

In the context of public reporting (Article 10 of the UN Convention) it is planned to develop anticorruption website, in order to implement anticorruption education. That website is administered by the Central Anticorruption Bureau and contains numerous information (including minutes, reports) and publications devoted to anticorruption. The information in the a/m area can be found on the authorities websites which are responsible for preventing and combating corruption (e.g. the Police, the Internal Security Agency, the Ministry of Justice, the Prosecution General) as well.

In the context of ensuring public participation in preventing and combating corruption, the primary tasks and activities are following:

1. to ensure opportunities for NGOs and society participation in reviewing and defining legal acts in order to reduce corruption risks.
2. to facilitate the practical implementation of law on the right to public information, including through the Internet.
3. to define and implement programmes and educational campaigns for the society, including through the Internet, public radio and television as well.

The a/m tasks and actions will be implemented by the appropriate ministries and institutions.
