

We would like to inform you that currently KNAB (Corruption Prevention and Combating Bureau of Latvia) has one open data initiative.

EDIS (Electronic Data Input System) is a new data input system in Latvia, which was started on 1st January 2020 under supervision of KNAB as the competent institution. It is developed to ease the submission of documents and reports of political parties. EDIS system will diminish the administrative weight for the political parties and will provide opportunity to receive information faster, when a donation is not in compliance with legal regulation. KNAB will be able to process information and financial analysis of political parties more efficiently, as well as publishing the information will be made easier.

By using EDIS political parties will be able to announce to KNAB the received membership and joining fees, the received and refunded (returned) gifts (donations), submit the income and expense declarations of elections and annual reports.

According to the law, the submitted information is publicly available. The new system also allows uploading the reports in JSON data format, which allows open data access to the published information.
