

Regarding the note CU 2020/75(A)/DTA/CEB/ISS of Feb 21, 2020 on open data sources, I have received more detailed answers from two Polish institutions:

1. The Police:

The Bureau of Internal Affairs of the Police prevents and combats the crimes committed by the police and police employees, which includes corruption. On its public website

<http://policja.pl/pol/bswp/67855,Biuro-Spraw-Wewnetrznych-Policji.html> , the Bureau publishes information on:

- the cases of suspected corruption,
- trainings and meetings on the subject,
- international cooperation,
- prevention of corruption and
- publishes relevant statistical data (yearly reports – the most recent: “Information on the crime threat regarding the Police in 2019”).

2. The National Prosecutor’s Office:

The National Prosecutor’s Office gathers data on proceedings supervised by the organizational units that it supervises. Each year, the Department on Organized Crime and Corruption of the Prosecutor’s Office prepares a report on the coordinated actions regarding fighting corruption. The latest was published on April 8, 2020 (signature PK III PZ 420.4.2019).

Moreover, the Polish Government provides open data from numerous public institutions through an internet portal: <https://dane.gov.pl/> . The portal also provides some data on crime eg. coming from the National Police Headquarters.
