Does Crime Pay?

Computer Crime: A Criminological Overview

Effective Crime Prevention: Keeping Pace With New Developments

Political Refugee's Violence in Norway

Advancing the Status of Women Trafficking Victims and Survivors

Sanctions and Remedies in Cases of Illegal Financing of Political Parties
NOTE FROM THE MANAGING EDITOR

Welcome to Forum on Crime and Society, a completely new United Nations publication, published twice each year in all six official languages of the United Nations (Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish).

Forum is issued by the Centre for International Crime Prevention, Office for Drug Control and Crime Prevention (ODCCPI), of the United Nations Secretariat, under the direction of the Editorial Board, which is comprised of: Pino Arlacchi, Executive Director of ODCCP and Director-General of the United Nations Office at Vienna; Jan van Dijk, Officer-in-Charge of the Centre; Vincenzo Ruggiero, Professor of Sociology at Middlesex University; and Antoinette Al-Mulla, Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Officer at the Centre.

The predecessor of Forum, the International Review of Criminal Policy, was first published in 1951 by the Centre.

The aims of Forum are to encourage international debate and to present theoretically sound, well-researched and policy-oriented articles on crime prevention and criminal justice, in order to stimulate discussion among academics, policy makers, law enforcers and other practitioners with diverse views and perspectives. Its focus will be on trends, ideas and practices in the field of criminal justice that are of special significance to the international community.

The present issue of Forum has two different sections. The first section contains academic articles whose format, length and presentation style follow the conventional criteria adopted in other academic journals. The second section, entitled "Notes and action", offers an opportunity for authors to present less conventional material, including shorter papers and commentaries on practical experiences, legislation, policy initiatives, project results and so on. Future issues of Forum will include a third section, in which reviews of books and other academic work will be presented.

This first issue of Forum includes articles based on papers delivered at the Tenth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held in Vienna from 10 to 17 April 2000.

The Editorial Board hopes that Forum will enable United Nations researchers to forge a partnership with scholars and experts outside of the Organization in order to advance knowledge and improve practice in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice.

The Editorial Board invites scholars and experts from around the world to contribute to Forum articles on criminological and socio-legal issues, including theory, prevention, social control, the rule of law and governance.
Articles submitted for publication in Forum should be original, that is, they should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under consideration for publication in any other journal. The length of manuscripts to be considered for publication as articles in the first section of Forum should not normally exceed 6,000 words.

Shorter papers and commentaries to appear in the second section of Forum, entitled "Notes and action", should not be more than 2,500 words in length.

Manuscripts should be submitted in hard copy or, if possible, in electronic format. The curriculum vitae of the author and an abstract should accompany each manuscript.

Manuscripts to be considered for publication in Forum should follow the Harvard or author-date system of referencing, whereby the author and year of publication of a work appear in the text and full details of the work are provided in a list of references at the end of the text.

All manuscripts, reviews and correspondence should be sent to Antoinette Al-Mulla, the Managing Editor of Forum by post (Centre for International Crime Prevention, United Nations, P.O. Box 500, A-1400 Vienna, Austria), by e-mail (Antoinette. Al-Mulla@unvienna.org) or by fax ((431) 26060/5898).
CONTENTS

Does crime pay? On the relationships between crime, rule of law and economic growth

Jan J. M. van Dijk..................................................................................................................................................................................1

Effective crime prevention: keeping pace with new developments

Ronald V. Clarke...................................................................................................................................................................................................17

Computer crime: a criminological overview

Peter Grabosky..................................................................................................................................................................................................35

Homicide, kidnapping and armed conflict in Colombia

Mauricio Rubio .......................................................... 55

NOTES AND ACTION

Managing anti-corruption agencies

Jon Moran, Alan Doig and David Watt..........................................................................................................................................................................69

Illegal financing of political parties: sanctions and remedies

Gherardo Colombo ................................................................................................................................................................................................89