Over the past 150 years, humanity has experienced several opioid crises but none as devastating as the present one. Around 53 million people worldwide used opioids in 2017. Among those people, around 29 million had also used opiates such as heroin and opium – these estimates are also 50 per cent higher than previously estimated. Opioids are a major concern many countries because of the severe health consequences associated with their use. For example, in 2017, the use of opioids accounted for 110,000 (66 per cent) of the 167,000 deaths worldwide attributed to drug use disorders.

The UNODC Opioid Strategy is a five-pillar integrated, inter-agency response to the global opioid crisis. Led by UNODC, the Strategy integrates the unique expertise housed within the Office with complimentary specialized knowledge across the UN system. The UNODC Opioid Strategy coordinates inter-agency collaboration with key international partners such as the World Health Organization, International Narcotics Control Board, the World Customs Organization, Universal Postal Union, INTERPOL, the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe as well as strategic regional organizations such as the Organization of American States, the European Monitoring Centre for Drug Dependence and Addiction, African Union and the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development.

The integrated UNODC Opioid Strategy is supported by a comprehensive communications and advocacy plan, to highlight global activities, successes and best practices in addressing the opioid crisis. This will raise public awareness on the progress of the strategy and support the visibility of the multilateral response to the crisis and donor commitments and contributions.
