

Comments from Lithuania, covering the police section from 2001 – 2002

There is a mistake in Item 2.1. The number of reported crimes in Lithuania in 2002 was 72,646, not 79,265. So, there is not considerable difference between the percentages of calculated sums for 2001 and 2002.

Furthermore, we would like to notice that the number of the total thefts (Item 2.11) includes the number of automobile thefts (Item 2.12) and the number of burglaries (Item 2.13).

The categories of crimes that are not covered by Items 2.2-2.18 and are included in the total number of recorded crimes are as follows: offences against governance order; offences against justice; offences against managing order; offences against finance; offences against State; violation of road traffic rules; disorderly conduct; destruction of property; avoidance of child maintenance and other.
