

ADDRESSING HATE CRIMES AFTER KYOTO

WHAT IS NEEDED TO MAKE THE COMMITMENTS ON HATE CRIME A REALITY?

Join experts to discuss and find out!

THURSDAY, 20 MAY 2021 AT 13:10 (CEST)

Click the link to join:

<https://odihr-pl.zoom.us/j/82119260590>

Session will be held in English only

SPEAKERS

Anna Giudice is a Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Officer at the Justice Section, Division for Operations, UNODC Headquarters in Vienna. As a career UN staff she has worked with UNODC since 2000, in various functions relating to the implementation of the international drug and crime conventions and UN standards and norms on crime prevention and criminal justice. Her background is in Public International Law and International Human Rights Law. She currently leads a team supporting Member States in advancing access to justice for all with a focus on police reform, racial discrimination and inclusion and diversity in the criminal justice system as well as victim support and assistance.

Aleš Gião Hanek serves as the Hate Crime Officer in ODIHR's Tolerance and Non-Discrimination Department. Prior to joining ODIHR in 2013, he dealt with hate crimes at national level, working with targeted communities. With background in security and diplomacy, Ales holds degrees in Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law. In ODIHR, Ales is responsible for hate crime monitoring, capacity building and policy work, and in charge of compilation of ODIHR's annual hate crime reporting at hatecrime.osce.org. Ales is an experienced trainer for diverse audiences and has broad experience customizing international approaches on hate crimes to varied national contexts.

Kathleen Coogan is the Senior Advisor for Criminal Justice Integration and Gender in the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs (INL). She advises colleagues on approaches for increasing participation of women as police and other justice system practitioners, promoting access to justice, and countering bias-motivated violence. She was instrumental in the integration of gender into INL's strategy, communications, and programming; and she designed a new program to promote criminal justice approaches for preventing atrocities. Kathleen is also an adjunct professor for Georgetown University in the Master of Arts in Conflict Resolution program. Previously she worked for a United States Senator, a law firm in Chicago, and a shelter for victims of domestic violence in Phoenix.

Paul Giannasi is currently the Hate Crime Advisor to the National Police Chiefs' Council in the United Kingdom, having accrued 30 years experience as a police officer. He advises on hate crime policy and coordinates national responses, managing 'True Vision' (www.report-it.org.uk) on behalf of the police. He is the co-author of the national Police Hate Crime Guidance which offers advice to all UK police officers and partners. From 2007, until it ended in 2017, Paul led the cross-government Hate Crime Programme, which brought all sectors of government together with civil society, to coordinate efforts to improve the response to hate crime across the criminal justice system. For over a decade, Paul represented the UK Government to international governmental agencies on hate crime and has worked to share good practice in many developing and post-conflict states, training professionals and assisting in policy development.

Robin Sclafani is the Director of the 30 year old, Brussels-based, CEJI-A Jewish Contribution to an Inclusive Europe. CEJI is committed to fighting discrimination in all its forms, doing so principally through anti-bias education and training programmes. Since 2011, CEJI is coordinating "Facing Facts," a broad European network of civil society organisations and law enforcement agencies that generates holistic, multi-stakeholder approaches to hate crime monitoring, response and prevention. Supporting this effort is the Facing Facts Online e-learning platform launched in 2016, which offers a wide variety of courses that address specific aspects of identifying, monitoring and countering hate crime and hate speech (www.facingfactsonline.eu).

