This side event will reflect the approach of Peruvian’s “National Policy Against Drugs to 2030” to integral and sustainable alternative development, as an effective tool to contribute to rural development of the Amazon population, by promoting the strengthening of legal markets within the margins of community law, respect for their cultures, and diversity of each territory. As a complement to this comprehensive strategy, it is expected to strengthen the alternative development model through agreements with the local population, by promoting a legally binding new Social and Citizen Pact with coca leaf growers of Peru.
